Write Curious George an email.

Hi Curious George,

I am really glad to write you an email. I like reading stories about you and I like you very much because you are curious and very cute. You are a monkey. You are small. You have no tail. You have a friend, the man with the yellow hat. You have a lot of hair. You are very cute. I have many questions to ask you. How old are you? Do you come to my school? Where do you live?

I read a book called "Curious George Visits the Library". This book is about your first visit to the library. Do you remember this book? This is a funny and perfect book. Let me tell you this story.

One day, your friend and you went to the library. You were brave. You went to the children's room alone. You wanted to read a dinosaur book. You were not patient enough to wait for the librarian. You tried to take the book home. Then you found many books. Next you found a cart for carrying books. When you went down the ramp, the cart was moving fast. The cart crashed into a shelf and the books fell on the floor. Some children and you helped the library volunteer tidy the books. Finally, the library volunteer gave a library card to you and you borrowed the books.

I like this book very much. I like the part about the cart when it crashed into a shelf and the books fell onto the floor. I think you need to be polite because you did not ask the librarian before taking the books home and you also did not ask the librarian about the cart. I am not blaming you but it is just a friendly advice for you. I am happy because my English teacher gave my class some funny story books about you. Can you come to my school? I think I would like to play with you.

Please write soon.
