

George the knight

George was a knight. He was as brave as a lion and everyone liked him. One day, a fierce dragon locked a beautiful princess in a castle. The king told George that he needed to save the princess. Then, he set off to the castle.

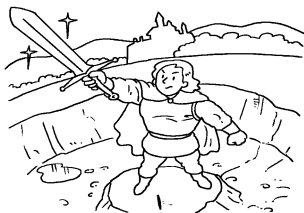

On the way, he met a donkey which could talk. It said, "Before you get into the castle, you must fight with the terrible dragon. You can't win unless you get a sword which is in the middle of the magical lake. It is very powerful." George thanked it and went to the lake.

Soon, he arrived there but he didn't know how to swim. Therefore, he decided to drink all the water. He drank and drank and at last drank all the water.

Suddenly, he became very strong because the water was very special and had magical power. After that, he pulled the sword out from the stone and ran back to the castle.

After a while, he was back and shouted, "Hey, dragon! I am not afraid of you and I come here to beat you now!" Next, the dragon came out from a cave and roared. George fought with the dragon and the princess was very worried.

Finally, he killed the dragon and won. He saved the princess and took her home. At last, they lived happily forever.