George the knight

George was a knight. He wanted to save the princess who locked in the castle.

When George wanted to go back to his house, he met a donkey. The donkey said, "The princess is locked by a dragon. You need to get the sword which is in a pool and fight with the dragon. Then, you can save the princess." So, George went to the pool to take the sword.

When George arrived there, he found that the sword was in the middle of the pool. So, he tried to drink all the water and get the sword. After he drank all the water, he changed to a strong man and he could get the sword. He was excited.

Next, George went to the castle to find the dragon and fought with it. The princess was scared when she looked at the fight between George and the dragon.

Finally, George used the sword to kill the dragon and saved the princess. The princess fell in love with George because she thought that George was as brave as a lion. They got married and lived happily ever after.
