Book Title: The House that Jack's Friends Built

This story is about Jack. He didn't have a house of his own. So he called his friends to build a house together. Paul built the wall. Ellie helped put down a brand new floor. Lynn helped build a road of tin and Jay built a kitchen, a bedroom, a dining room and a den.

Jack felt excited about his new house. Then he called his friends to live together. Finally, they felt glad about living together.

I like the story very much because Jack's friends were kind. They helped Jack build a house but did not ask for return. I learnt that we should help people but shouldn't ask for return. Helping people will be happy. I will help my family and friends if I can.

Then I will be the happiest person in the world. We shouldn't reject our friends or family if they are in need.
